Psychiatrist/Therapist Reactions to Patient Suicide

Presented by

Michael Gitlin, M.D.

Distinguished Professor of Clinical Psychiatry
Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA

Wednesday, January 26th, 2022

11:30 a.m. - 1:00 p.m.

Live Presentation via Zoom

Although suicides are infrequent in the practice of mental health professionals, they can be very troubling when they occur. After reviewing the prevalence of suicide in clinical practice, this talk will focus on the typical psychological reactions of mental health professionals to patient suicides, predictors of more intense psychological reactions to patient suicide, and optimal methods of coping with patient suicide.

Educational Objectives

As a result of participating in this activity, learners should be able to:

1. Describe the typical reactions of therapists to patient suicide
2. Explain the optimal methods for therapists in coping with patient suicide
